SOLDIER RELEASED FROM PRISON FOR MENTAL TREATMENT

Milwaukee Service Man to be Sent to Psychiatric Institute; Pardon Comes Later
MADISON, Wis.—Governor Blaine Saturday released Frank Sorenson, Milwaukee, from the state's prison to permit him to go to the Wisconsin Psychiatric Institute for treatment, explaining in a memorandum accompanying the release that Sorenson would later be granted a pardon.
The young man, now 25 years old, is serving 15 years for assault with intent to rob. Early in 1920 he had entered the apartment of a Milwaukee family, while armed, but had fled on being challenged.
Governor Blaine outlined the military service of Sorenson, who previous to committing the act for which he was convicted, had served through the front in the Mexican border in 1916 and had been with the Thirty-second division overseas. His act is attributed to the effects of his war service.
"The temporary permit is granted to meet all conditions of the statute," Governor Blaine said, adding that "I desire to state in this memorandum that Frank Sorenson will not be returned to the Wisconsin State prison. My conclusion is to grant executive clemency by way of a pardon at the proper time, for a reason additional to what is herein stated. The obligation of the state, however, can be best discharged through the state's determination for complete rehabilitation."
"Frank Sorenson in 1916 went with the Wisconsin troops to the Mexican border. With the 32nd division in France he served in three major battles. He was gassed at Solers and wounded at Verdun."
"In the Alsace sector, Sorenson was promoted to rank of sergeant. At Juiverly he received the commander of his company and was cited for gallantry in action. He is not mentally unsound, nor can it be said that he has any mental derangement. However, he is suffering from instability of the nervous system."
"My personal contact with men similarly injured and the knowledge I have derived from examinations made by medical experts, convinces me beyond any doubt that there must be a sympathetic attitude toward these men. It also can be said that a solution about through medical treatment in at least 95 per cent of the cases."
"He is permitted to go to the Wisconsin Psychiatric institute."

AUTO TURNS OVER TRAVELING MAN IS FOUND UNINJURED

Winona Salesman Has Fortunate Escape on Slippery Road North of Holmen
Skidding on a freshly oiled road, a Ford roadster occupied by a Winona traveling salesman, overturned on Highway No. 11 four miles north of Holmen, late Friday afternoon and the driver had a miraculous escape from injury.
The car, going north, was traveling at high speed when it hit a freshly oiled piece of road. The driver tried to slow down his machine as he felt it skidding, but as he shut off the gas the car skidded more, finally turning a complete circle, striking the turf at the side of the road and turning over in such a manner that the top inclined into a ditch, at the side of the road.
The driver climbed out of the side of the car before drivers of other cars near by could reach him, shook himself and said he was not hurt. With the assistance of a half dozen men the car was righted and beyond a bent rear fender and a broken strap which held the top to the windshield, was found to be uninjured. The traveling salesman continued on his drive to Winona within five minutes after the tipover.

PITY THE POOR

HE that bath pitty upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will he pay him again. —Proverbs 19: 17.

Landis on the Grid

JUDGE LANDIS took "a good offer" when he descended from the bench to the desk of baseball's arbiter. But he may have thought he was earning it when thirty-thousand crazy fans booed him at the Polo Grounds. A judge sits in as near to majesty as this republic permits, monarch of his court and all who are in it. His word goes, no judge on the bench was ever better cognizant of it than Kenesaw Mountain Landis. His saw-edged, sarcastic voice was as supreme in his court-room as ever was the command of a driving skipper on his quarter-deck at sea. Protesting counsel and mutinous witnesses quailed at the twist of his knife-edged jaw and the shake of his white mane. Did he, one wonders, have a fleeting memory of that surrendered power as he sat in his box at the world series, and took it? Did he not, just for an instant, long to cry as of old for his bailiff to "clear the court—bring that man up here!" It was a passing incident, result of a circumstance for which Landis was probably not in the least responsible. But it must have made more vivid to him than any experience since he left the bench how different is the job of baseball arbiter than that of a federal judge. A lot of men who have wriggled while Judge Landis impaled them on his bitter humor from the bench may think they would have given much to see him, in his turn, at bay and helpless. But we doubt if it would have given them much comfort. For whatever else Judge Landis is, he is not afraid. We'll venture he looked the mob in the eye and grinned.

Weather Forecast

NO DOUBT Wisconsin people who are displeased with prohibition, and perhaps especially with the laws for its enforcement, expect some legislative triumphs in the pending session of the state legislature. Almost to a man they supported Governor Blaine and his associates, and the solidarity of their support was accentuated by the opposition of the Anti-Saloon League, which the governor denounced vigorously in his speeches. If sound is important in politics, the outcome must be taken as a rather signal victory for the wets.

But Mr. Hutton, he of the Anti-Saloon League, has not lost his unvarying optimism. It appears that many wet voters came to the La Follette machine because that machine was wet, but it does not appear that a substantial number of dries among La Follette's followers deserted the ticket upon that issue. Indeed, there are a number of La Follette dries in the legislature, as well as a number of anti-La Follette dries. Among the La Follette prohibitionists is Senator Severson, a man who has demonstrated considerable courage and no mean ability in the past, and in a combination between Severson and Skogmo Mr. Hutton sees a chance to block wet legislation. While the outcome may be more or less in doubt, the dries at least have the satisfaction of knowing that these two senators working together upon any issue would form a powerful bi-factional combination. The forecast may be for wet weather, but in that case it will be in form of thunderstorms.

Road Ways and Means

THE plan for financing highway improvement in Wisconsin, endorsed by the legislative committee of the county highway superintendent association, will be one of the most important matters to come before the 1922-23 session of the legislature.

Much of its detail relates exclusively to the problem of raising money, and it is upon this phase that debate will largely center. But even more important are the portions of the program which relate to the expenditure of money. Under our present system, in which the county is the unit, it has been difficult, and often impossible, to bring a state trunk highway up to an all-weather basis because it way up one or more counties unable to bear their portion of the financial burden. Under the proposed new law the matter would rest in the hands of the highway commission and a trunk highway could not be blocked merely because some county, which it traversed, was unable to foot the bills.

The proposal includes a tax on gasoline and an ad valorem tax on automobiles. As the Pierce-Arrow uses more gas than the Ford, this plan seems justified if it is proper to assume that automobile owners should pay a larger percentage of the tax than that covered by the state license. This, however, will be disputed. Probably the Nonpartisan League will attack the whole principle involved, insisting that highways contribute to property values and afford business facilities, and that therefore property and business should pay the bulk of this tax, possibly through the medium of a surtax.

Wisconsin needs more road money. Whether it shall be raised by direct or indirect taxes is at least to some extent a matter of justice. The league's position upon the subject can be defended with considerable logic. On the other hand, it will be contended that those who use the roads should bear the bulk of road expense, within their means, and that possession of an automobile is at least prima facie evidence of ability to pay.

The danger created by these differences of opinion is that the more essential portions of the bill, that which will enable the state to build up a system of all-weather through highways, may be lost in the quarrel over ways and means. Perhaps if neither side is able to secure a decisive victory, the bill may be saved by an acceptable compromise.

Helen's River

By RUBY DOUGLAS

"The river had a perfectly good name until you came along with your dominating personality," and now—well, you can see that no one ever calls it anything but Helen's River."

This from Ruth Frost as she laid her big summer hat on the rustic table at the water's edge.

"I don't like the word 'dominating,'" protested Helen Demming. "Am I that sort of person?"

Ruth went quickly to her side. "That sort of person? Why, dear, you certainly are. You are so sweet, so wonderful, so—oh, so everything—that naturally all the natives and all of us are going to include you in the history of this place forever."

Helen made no answer. She had taken the little house by the roadside on the impulse of the moment one day when she had been driving with friends through old parts of Connecticut. The house had seemed to beckon to her to come into it and make it home. A house was the last thing in the world she had expected to acquire, now that Ronald was gone and she had the two boys' education to look after.

"But somehow," she was explaining again to Ruth, "when I saw the river running on so bravely at the foot of the garden and heard it murmuring constantly over the rocks and pebbles, it seemed as if I could not help coming here. And now I hope every inch of it."

"It is the first time you have not seemed lonely since—since Ronald died," Ronald had been her husband. "I am not lonely here," admitted Helen.

There was more than one reason for her lack of loneliness. First there were always innumerable things to do inside and outside the old house. The garden was her joy. And it was in the building and planning of this garden that she had learned to be less lonely.

Frank Harwood, a landscape architect, had happened upon the place at almost the same moment that Helen had bought it, and he had come to meet her at the river's edge one afternoon when he was still contemplating the purchase.

"But I have bought it," explained Helen.

A look of disappointment caught his expression.

"I'm sorry. I did not know you wanted it so much," said Helen.

"A passing fancy, perhaps," he said lightly. But then he went on the tall her of the water garden he had planned and of the old gazing globe and sundial he had hoped to place in the upper garden.

"I'm sure I shall never be able to do so much with it," Helen deplored. And after that he came to sear her and to tell her that he had found, in the artist's colony just above, a little place that was for sale.

"I'll take it if you will let me help you plan your garden," he had said.

And Helen, being swept on, as she seemed to be, by Fate, had consented.

Now she and her friend Ruth Frost were sitting at the rustic table in the very water garden Frank Harwood had planned and watched grow. He then called it Helen's River.

"Let's go down to Helen's River," every one said when they meant to stop in at the hospitable little home for a cup of tea or an evening of music on the big porch under the moon.

"Frank has made me keep a garden book since the first day I planted a seed in the ground," Helen was saying.

"What do you put in it?" asked the city-bred Ruth.

"Oh—everything, from a record of the first tiny shoot that appears above the ground, to—oh, to the names of every one who visits it. And I have a picture of the landscape artist in the front," she admitted.

Ruth looked at her scrutinizingly. "Do you need the picture, Helen? Isn't he here every day to watch progress and—let you see him in person?"

Helen blushed.

"He is so fond of the boys, you know. I've noticed how he looks at—the boys. And how he walks by the river—with the boys!"

The man under discussion appeared at the brow of the hill at that moment. He was a big, curly-haired fellow with a boyish face and a buoyant gait. He whistled the familiar bird-call they had chosen for their signal.

"Come on down. We're about to have tea—or something," called Helen.

Leaping down the hill as if he were sixteen instead of nearly forty, Frank Harwood joined the party at the rustic table.

"Do you know that it is three years today since we had our first cup of tea here at this table in this river garden?" he asked, looking at Helen.

"No, is it?" she asked, pretending innocence.

"It is," he said deliberately.

Ruth felt as if something were going to happen. She felt a thrill in the air, a magnetized atmosphere.

"And if you don't hurry up, Helen, and tell me that I may come here to share your home, your garden, your life—and give you all my love."

"Frank!" protested Helen.

"I don't care for Ruth or any one else. You have kept me at arm's length as the landscape artist, the friend of the boys for long enough now, please tell me."

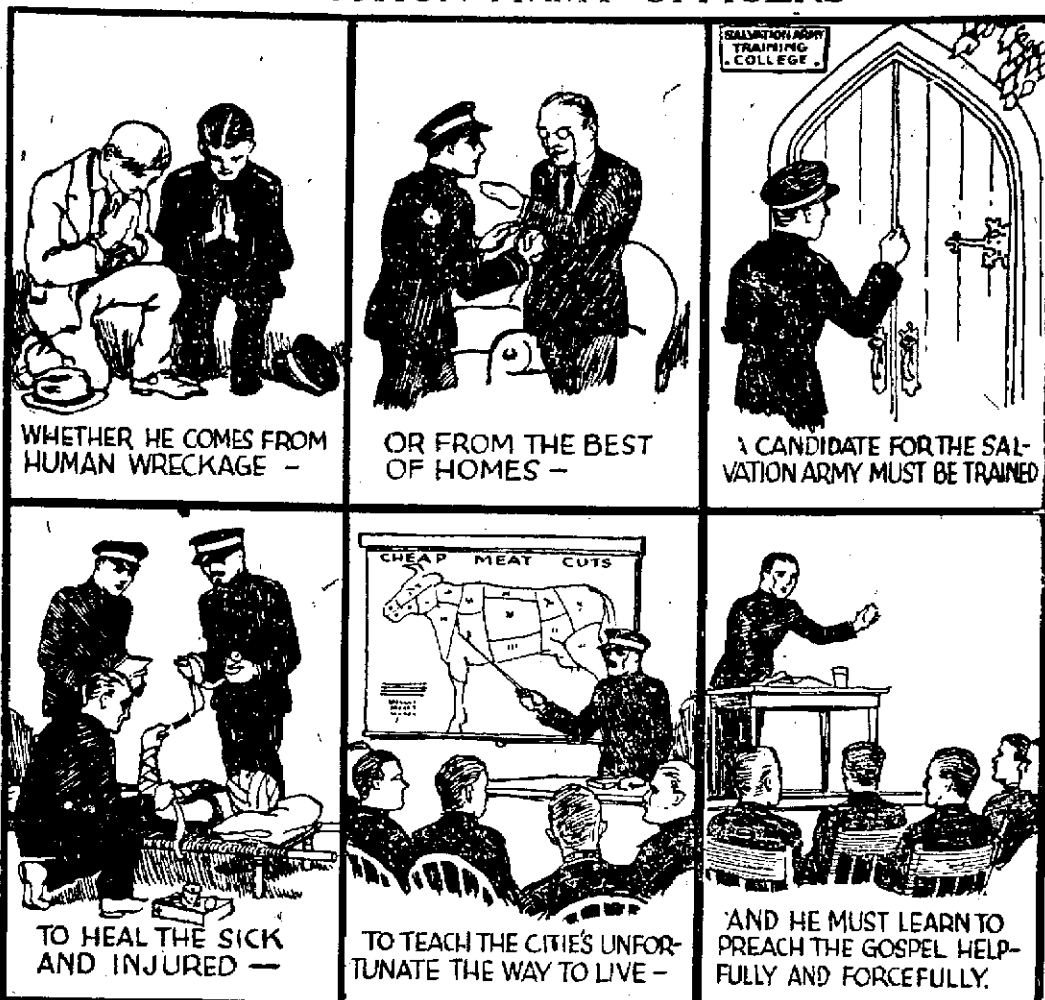

Ruth looked helplessly up the hill toward the cottage. "If Helen will promise not to say no again I'll—go," she said, embarrassed.

Helen looked at her, tears coming to her eyes. "I—I have wanted to say yes for a long time, but—somehow—I couldn't. I'm such an old-fashioned person and—"

They would not let her finish. They knew that she would say that it seemed such a few years since the boys' father had gone—the same excuse she had given before.

And—well he married right down here with Ruth and the other to see us? Frank asked. He had put his arm across her shoulders and they stood

Where do Salvation Army officers come from? The men come from almost everywhere. Sometimes they are men rescued from their own mispent lives. Often they are from the best of homes. The lassies are usually from good religious homes. But no matter how well or how ill equipped in education to become a Salvation Army officer, the candidate

Before he is accepted he must work under an officer for a considerable period and study under direction of the army's teachers until he has improved himself enough to enter the training college. At the training college in addition to having the rudiments of his work taught him, he learns first-aid, the economical way

COLLEEN MOORE

Colleen Moore ends her engagement at the Rivoli Saturday evening in one of the best movies that she has so far appeared in. It is Rupert Hughes' "Come on Over," and it has just the atmosphere and character to suit the wistful type represented by Colleen Moore. It deals with an Irish girl with a sweetheart in the United States who can't get together the passage money for her. Finally she comes on her own accord, without writing him she's on her way, and discovers him tangled up with another girl. That's the basis of the plot, and it unfolds from there in a story of heart interest and fun that leaves everyone feeling mighty good. Rivoli fans for the last two days have been enjoying it hugely.

CASINO TODAY

"Nero," the spectacular William Fox picture still remains the dominating big photodrama of the year and the greatest screen sensation of many seasons. It is at the Casino theater tonight.

"Nero" is such a wonderful reproduction of the time in early Roman history when the Christians were persecuted, that students of historical events who have seen the photodrama, declare it is simply short of marvellous that Director J. Gordon Edwards was able to secure such perfect pictorialization of the manners and customs in Rome two thousand years ago.

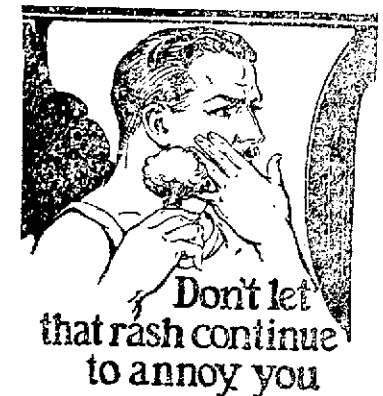

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD" IS HERE. It is a pity that Benjamin Thompson is not alive to see the Paramount picture version of his classic, "The Old Homestead," at the Riviera theater Sunday. It is one of the best pictures from every point of view that has been here in a long time. The direction by James Cruze is splendid, the acting of the big all-star cast is superlative and the settings are perfect. The old homestead set is one of the most beautiful and convincing ever shown, while the storm scene fairly thrilled the spectators. Theodore Roberts makes a wonderful character of Uncle Josh and other characters in the cast are equally well portrayed.

"Broadway Rose," which opens at the Riviera theater Monday is sure to appeal to those who found pleasure in Miss Murray's recent productions, "Peacock Alley" and "Fascination," and that means nearly everyone who goes to the movies.

For in "Broadway Rose" she loves Hugh Thompson, the son of wealthy Fifth Avenue parents who are bitterly opposed to his infatuation. Seeking only happiness for herself and the man she loves, she consents to a secret marriage in order to avoid an open break between Hugh and his family. But they discover the facts, and are relentless in the determination that their son's life shall not be ruined by such an alliance. The complications which ensue bring Rose very near to disaster, but in the end she finds real happiness.

OLD BOOK GIVEN TO LUTHER COLLEGE BY MRS. PREUS

DECORAH, Iowa.—From the mother of Governor J. A. O. Preus, the Luther college library here has recently received a very valuable book, a copy of the Augsburg Confession published in 1530, probably the first Latin edition of this epoch-making work. Mrs. C. K. Preus, the governor's mother, has owned the book for many years, it having been in the family and handed down from generation to generation. This volume is especially rare and will be added to the steadily growing collection, or library relics owned by Luther college and which includes a copy of the first volume of Niclaus Lyra's Commentary on the Bible, published in 1498 and printed in Basel. There is also a copy of the "Bible of Christian III" of 1550, of which there is known to be only two or three copies in this country, one of them being in the J. P. Morgan collection. Among others is a copy of Ludvig Holberg's "Peter Platen," 1772, the second complete edition of the first edition of Henrik Ibsen's first play, "Catilina," of which an edition of only thirty copies was printed.

WISCONSIN CO-OP COMPANIES UNDER FIRE FROM MORGAN FOR ALLEGED VIOLATION OF LAW

MADISON, Wis.—Two hundred and thirty co-operative companies in Wisconsin face revocation of their license to do business in the state with their officers subject to fine and imprisonment for failure to comply with provisions of the new co-operative association law. Attorney General William J. Morgan announced Saturday.

He has just been requested by Elmer S. Hall, secretary of state, to bring court action against the companies to compel their compliance with the state co-operative law. Mr. Morgan declined to say whether he would immediately proceed to bring suits to compel the companies to comply with the law or whether he had time to look into the facts of each case.

The statute involved provides that the name "co-operative" cannot be used unless a company has complied with the provisions of the co-operative law enacted by the 1921 legislature. Using the term without complying with the law subjects persons involved in fine and imprisonment and corporations to revocation of their rights to do business in the state.

Similarly, any corporation organized under the co-operative law which does not use the name "co-operative" or have it affixed to the corporate name is subject to revocation of its rights to do business in the state.

Following is a partial list of concerns which the secretary of state says are violating the state co-operative law:

The Co-operative Beneficial association of Manitowish; the Farmers

Co-operative Creamery company, Edgerton; the Guaranteed Undertakers' Co-operative Syndicate and Exchange company, Milwaukee; the Kenosha Co-operative company, Kenosha; the Milwaukee Co-operative land; Northwestern Co-operative Coal and Dock company, Ashland; the University Co-operative company, Madison; Washington Co-operative company, Eau Claire; American Staple Food association, Milwaukee; Burke Cheese and Supply company, Madison; Center Cheese Producers' association, Appleton; Door County produce company, Sturgeon Bay; Equity Farmers' Exchange, Madison; Forest Dairy association, Fond du Lac; German Cheese Producers' association, Plymouth; Gresham Cheese Producers' association, Plymouth; Glendon Dairy Producers' association, Milwaukee; Milk Center Cheese Producers' association, Green Bay; Outagamie Equity Exchange, Appleton; Rockwood Cheese Producers' company, Manitowish; Texas Cheese and Producers' company, Wausau; Wisconsin Equity Farmers' Exchange, Madison; Wisconsin Equity Livestock Marketing association, Madison; Wisconsin Wool Marketing association, and Wisconsin Equity Dairy Marketing association, all of Madison.

The co-operative concerns involved will be advised of the fact that they have failed to comply with the state law. Actions may be commenced by him in any circuit court of the state, Attorney General Morgan said.

PLAN STANDARDS FOR TEACHERS IN BADGER VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS

Bill to Define Qualifications to be Introduced in Next Session of Legislature

MADISON, Wis.—That there should be definite standards of required education for teachers in the continuation schools of the state was the declaration today by Secretary Edward Fitzpatrick of the state board of education. The statement clearly indicates that a bill to accomplish this purpose will be introduced at the 1923 session of the legislature. The present law provides that the teachers in the vocational school shall be employed and their qualifications determined by the local boards subject to the approval of the state board of vocational education.

The question of teachers' standards and qualifications is intricately bound up with the question of salaries, said Mr. Fitzpatrick. "Unless there is considerable unanimity as to the qualifications worth paying for, and some basis of confidence that those who acquire certain qualifications will be rewarded for it, there is little encouragement to teachers to improve the preparation of their work."

The real problem is the establishment of such standards of preparation as to salaries as will encourage the constant process of each teacher toward higher standards. These standards should encourage continuing ed preparation and encourage good teachers to remain in the schools. In determining these standards there should be such as to discourage people from coming into the teaching profession for only a year or two, to prevent arbitrary fixing of salaries without regard to qualifications; and to prevent local boards from employing poorly prepared teachers from a mistaken notion of economy.

The machinery to set up such standards is suggested by Mr. Fitzpatrick to consist of the state board of vocational education assisted by an advisory committee. Such a committee would be composed of teachers, directors, and local board members of all the continuation schools in the state. A bill to accomplish this purpose passed the assembly at the 1921 session but was defeated in the senate. It now seems apparent that it will be again introduced at the January session.

Grateful Son
"My boy," said the millionaire lecturing his son on the importance of economy, "when I was your age I carried water for a gang of bricklayers."

"I'm proud of you, father," answered his offspring; "if it hadn't been for your pluck and perseverance I might have had to do something of that sort myself."—Irish World.

DECEMBER 5TH DATE OF ANNUAL MEETING OF EQUITY SOCIETY

MADISON, Wis.—The Wisconsin State Union of the American Society of Equity will open its annual convention this year December 5 at Fond du Lac. E. C. Pomeroy, president, announced Saturday.

Business that has developed since the last convention will be taken up by the four-day meeting.

THE DIFFICULTY

Little Joe had completed the crystal receiving set and had made it "work." His astonished and proud mother said to him:

"Wasn't it very hard to do all this?"

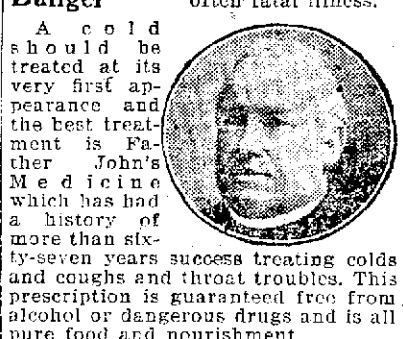

"Now," said Joe, "most of it was easy as anything."

"What was the hardest part of it?" she asked.

"Getting eight plunks out of pa," said Joe.—Radio Age.

STARTS SERIOUS TROUBLE

Colds That Hang On Form Real Danger
Many people do not realize the grave danger they are in when they neglect a cold. Neglected colds quickly lead to pneumonia and other serious and often fatal illness.

A cold should be treated at its very first appearance and the best treatment is Father John's Medicine which has had a history of more than sixty-seven years success treating colds and coughs and throat troubles. This prescription is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs and is all pure food and nourishment.

Public Debate

"BOYS STICK TOGETHER"

La Crosse Tribune, Dear Sir: Three cheers for the interested reader who wrote the editorial in last night's issue. If there were more women like that, I think it would be much better.

Let's stick together "Bobbed heads," and show them we have a mind of our own.

EVJUE IS HEAD OF EXECUTIVE BODY OF G. O. P. COMMITTEE

MADISON, Wis.—William T. Evjue, editor of the Capital Times, Madison, was named chairman of the executive committee of the republican state central committee Saturday by Robert M. La Follette, Jr., chairman of the party's central organization.

Other members of the executive committee appointed by La Follette are: W. H. Armstrong, Racine; Miss Zora Gales, Portage; John Gruenwald, Milwaukee, and P. J. Smith, Eau Claire.

This body will direct the active campaign of republican candidates for office preceding the Wisconsin general election in November.

Synthetic Goodness

Daughter: "The preacher just phoned and said he was coming to call this afternoon."

Mother: "Gracious! We must make a good impression. Give the baby the hymn-book to play with."

—American Legion Weekly.

The common emetic, ipecac, comes from Brazil.

WIFE DIDN'T SPEAK TO HIM IN 18 YEARS SO HE DIVORCES HER

CHICAGO, Ill.—For eighteen years Walter Raleigh lived in the same house with a wife who in all that time never spoke to him, kissed him or recognized him, but lived in a separate room and ate at a separate table, he testified.

Raleigh grew tired of trying to make her live with him, and applied for a divorce. Judge Hugo Friend granted it on Thursday.

Mrs. Raleigh spoke her last word to her husband in 1904, he said, when their younger son died and the other two children left home.

"It was like living with a ghost," Raleigh told the court. "I consulted physicians, but she remained silent as a sphinx. I tried every way to cajole her, madden her, and surprise her into speaking to me, but it couldn't be done."

TRIP OF INSPECTION COSTS MORE THAN THE DENTAL BILL

Two ex-service men recently made a trip from La Crosse to Madison for the purpose of obtaining a minute dental inspection of teeth. The men had dental work done in La Crosse, at government expense and were ordered to Madison to have it approved before the La Crosse dentist could be paid. The expense attached to the men's trip to Madison was more than the original cost of the dental work.

So He Consented

"Josh, I hear yer hired man is goin' to marry yer eldest daughter."

"Yep, dawgones him! If he wasn't sodurn lazy I'd take pity on him and not let him in fer what he's goin' to be let in fer."—American Legion Weekly.

Thunder

Thunder is rarely heard more than fifteen miles, but heavy gun firing is heard for much greater distances. This is sometimes explained by the statement that the sound is reflected back to the earth by clouds.

WILSON TODAY—KAISER TODAY—FREAK RAILROAD SMASH—BABE'S BABE—MRS. AND MR. ISADORA

PILGRIMS AGAIN STORM LOURDES SEEKING MIRACLES—This remarkable picture of the annual pilgrimage to the shrine at Lourdes, France, just over, has just reached America. In the foreground are seen the sick, halt and blind in wheel chairs and other conveyances. The famous Virgin of Lourdes is seen in a crypt in the rocks. In background are scores of crutches thrown away by pilgrims said to have been cured by prayer to the Virgin.

PERSHING GOLFS—It's safe for General John J. Pershing to take his coat off when he plays golf for he hasn't any superior officer to come along and call him to attention.

A LAPFUL OF WILDNESS—If you're tired of conventional pets, try some little wildcats like these. They came from the Amazon basin. Lorraine Brox, New York girl, says she likes 'em.

WILSON AS HE LOOKS TODAY—Here is the latest photograph of Ex-President Woodrow Wilson, taken while the former executive was enjoying an afternoon auto spin. The picture was snapped from another car traveling at 30 miles an hour.

GREEK QUEEN—Princess Elizabeth has become queen of Greece through the accession of her consort, Prince George, who mounted the throne when King Constantine abdicated. She is of Rumanian birth.

KAISER AND BRIDE—Here's the latest picture of Wilhelm von Hohenzollern, former German emperor, and Princess Hermine Schoenauich Carolath von Reuss, whom he will wed in November. Notice that Wilhelm has abandoned the military mustache and that his beard has grown shaggy and unkempt. The princess is 35, a widow and mother of five children.

CAT FIREMAN—When members of the Rockaway Park (N. Y.) engine company slide down the brass pole, their cat mascot, Hans, does so, too. Here he is doing it.

DANCER DETAINED AT ELLIS ISLAND—When Isadora Duncan, American dancer, and Serge Yesenin, whom she married abroad, reached Ellis Island, immigration officials held the pair while State Department investigated the husband's citizenship. He's said to be a subject of soviet Russia. Neither of the honeymooners can understand the other, and they have an interpreter.

DEUCES WILD IN THE WILD WATERS—Celluloid cards—they float. Hence, water polo. Misses Louise Horman, Marie Crandall, Dorothy Crandall and Marie Dikeman (left to right) show how it is played in a swimming pool at Washington, D. C.

KEPT CUP HERE—Glen-na Collett, 19, Providence, R. I., kept the women's golf cup in America when she defeated at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Mrs. William A. Gavin British cup contender.

HE'LL BE KING—Probably this baby doesn't know he'll be a king some day. He's the Prince Michael, son of the crown prince and princess of Rumania.

FLEEING BEFORE TURK ADVANCE—This Greek refugee, typical of thousands, is fleeing before the Turkish advance in Asia Minor, bearing all his worldly possessions on his back.

HOW'S THIS FOR BATHING SUIT?—You might think this bathing suit was designed to wear on the beach or to bathing suit parties. But Ruth Anderson says she wears it in the water. She swims at Los Angeles.

MAY LOSE THRONE—King Alexander of Yugoslavia who recently wed Princess Marie of Rumania, may lose his throne as the result of a revolution engineered by those who support the crown claims of his brother.

NEW CLOCK—C. F. Meyer, paymaster of the National Cash Register Company, Dayton, O., has invented a new decimal clock with the hour divided into ten sections of six minutes each. It's used in figuring employees' time at the factory.

FREAK IN RAILWAY CRASH—A steel rail bent in this curious manner was the result of a wreck on the Southern Pacific at Montalvo, Cal., in which 45 were hurt and one killed. Cars were thrown about like playing cards.

MEDAL FOR HER—Alice Widner, 18, telephone operator, stuck to her post in a Logan (W. Va.) office building until the building collapsed, calling aid and saving sleeping persons from death. Now friends seek a medal for her.
